THEOREM. n. f. [theorema, Fr. θεώρημα.] A position laid down as an acknowledged truth.
Having found this the head theorem of all their discourses, who plead for the change of ecclesiastical government in England, we hold it necessary that the proofs thereof be weighed. Hooker, b. ii.
The chief points of morality are no less demonstrable than mathematics; nor is the subtilty greater in moral theorems than in mathematical. More's divine Dialogues.
Many observations go to the making up of one theorem, which, like oaks fit for durable buildings, must be of many years growth. Grant.
Here are three theorems, that from thence we may draw some conclusions. Dryden's Dufresnoy.
THEOREMATICAL. adj. [from theorem.] Comprised in the-of preserving health; and therapeutick, or the art of restoring it. Watt.

THERE. adv. [thar, Gothick; thar, Saxon; dar, Dutch;
der, Danish.]
1. In that place.
If they come to sojourn at my house,
I'll not be there. Shakespeare's King Lear.
Exil'd by thee from earth to deepest hell,
In brazen bonds shall bar'rous discord dwell;
Gigantic pride, pale terror, gloomy care,
And mad ambition shall attend her there. Pope.
2. It is opposed to here.
To see thee fight, to see thee traverse, to see thee here, to see thee there. Shakespeare's Merry Wives of Windsor.
Could their relishes be as different there as they are here, yet the manna in heaven will suit every palate.
Darkness there might well seem twilight here. Milton.
3. An exclamation directing something at a distance.
Your fury hardens me.
A guard there; seize her. Dryden's Aurengzeb.
4. It is used at the beginning of a sentence with the appearance of a nominative case, but serves only to throw the nominative behind the verb: as, a man came, or there came a man.
It adds however some emphasis, which, like many other idioms in every language, must be learned by custom, and can hardly be explained. It cannot always be omitted without harshness: as, in old times there was a great king.
For reformation of error there were that thought it a part of Christian charity to instruct them. Hooker.
There cannot in nature be a strength so great, as to make the least moveable to pass in an instant, or all together, through the least place. Digby on the Soul.
There have been that have delivered themselves from their ills by their good fortune or virtue. Suckling.
In human actions there are no degrees described, but a latitude is indulged. Bishop Taylor.
Wherever there is sense or perception, there some idea is

The giver. Milton.
THEREAT. adv. [there and at.]
1. At that; on that account.
Every error is a stain to the beauty of nature; for which cause it blushteth thereafter, but glorieth in the contrary. Hooker.
2. At that place.
Wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction; and many go in thereat. Mat. vii. 13.
THEREBY. adv. [there and by.] By that; by means of that;
in consequence of that.
Some parts of our liturgy consist in the reading of the word of God, and the proclaiming of his law, that the people may thereby learn what their duties are towards him. Hooker.
Therewith at last he forc'd him to untie
One of his grasping feet, him to defend thereby. Spenser.
Being come to the height, they were thereby brought to an absolute necessity. Davies on Ireland.
Dare to be true; nothing can need a lie.
A fault, which needs it most, grows two thereby. Herbert.
If the paper be placed beyond the focus, and then the red colour at the lens be alternately intercepted and let pass, the violet on the paper will not suffer any change thereby. Newton.
THEREFORE. adv. [there and fore.]
1. For that; for this; for this reason; in consequence.
This is the latest parley we will admit;
Therefore to our best mercy give yourselves. Shakespeare.
Fallstaff is dead,
And we must yern thereby. Shakespeare's Henry V.
Therefore shall a man leave father and mother and cleave to his wife. Gen. ii. 24.
The herd that feeds after sensual pleasure is soft and unmanly; and therefore I compole myself to meet a storm. Lucas.
He blushtes; therefore he is guilty. Spektator.
The wrestlers sprinkled dust on their bodies to give better hold: the glory therefore was greater to conquer without powder. Woff's Pindar.
2. In return for this; in recompence for this or for that.
We have forsaken all and followed thee, what shall we have therefore? Mat. xix. 27.
THEREFORE. adv. [there and from.] From that; from this.

the law, that ye turn not aside therefrom, to the right hand or to the left. Jos. xxiii. 6.
The leaves that spring therefrom grow white. Mortimer.
THEREIN. adv. [there and in.] In that; in this.
Therein our letters do not well agree. Shakespeare.
The matter is of that nature, that I find myself unable to serve you therein as you desire. Bacon.
All the earth
To thee, and to thy race, I give: as lords Possess it, and all things that therein live.
After having well examined them, we shall therein find many charms. Dryden's Dufresnoy.
THEREINTO. adv. [there and into.] Into that.
Let not them that are in the countries enter therein. Luke.
Though we shall have occasion to speak of this, we will now make some entrance therein. Bacon.
THEREOF. adv. [there and of.] Of that; of this.
Considering how the case doth stand with this present age, full of tongue and weak of brain, behold we yield to the stream thereof. Hooker, b. i.
Tis vain to think that lasting which must end;
And when 'tis past, not any part remains Thereof, but the reward which virtue gains. Denham.
I shall begin with Greece, where my observations shall be confined to Athens, though several instances might be brought from other states thereof. Swift.
THEREON. adv. [there and on.] On that.
You shall bereave yourself
Of my good purposes, and put your children
To that destruction which I'll guard them from;
If they on you rely. Shakespeare's Ant. and Cleopatra.

When that already gave so much to do? Daniel.
That it is the appointment of God, might be argument enough to persuade us thereto. Tillotson's Sermons.
THEREUPON. adv. [there and upon.]
1. Upon that; in consequence of that.
Grace having not in one thing shewed itself, nor for some few days, but in such sort so long continued, our manifold sins striving to the contrary, what can we less thereupon conclude, than that God would at least-wise, by tract of time, teach the world, that the thing which he blesteth cannot but be of him. Hooker, b. iv.
He hopes to find you forward
And thereupon he sends you this good news. Shakespeare.
Let that one article rank with the rest;
And thereupon give me your daughter. Shakespeare's Henry V.
Though grants of extraordinary liberties made by a king to his subjects do no more diminish his greatness than when one torch lighteth another, yet many times inconveniences do arise thereupon. Davies on Ireland.
Children are chid for having failed in good manners, and have thereupon reproofs and precepts heaped upon them. Locke.
